

Bill, See responses. As for the dinner, responses to all those questions are in the quotes we previously approved. They are again listed below. -- George

1. That Todd kissed her on her first day of the internship at Barclays, Todd: “That never happened.” The first Todd heard about this was from Bill Cohan and was never brought up during his discussion with Barclays HR.
2. That Todd repeatedly remarked on her looks (hair et al) Todd: “I never remarked on her looks.”
3. We have the following texts between Todd and her (in pdf form) and will likely embed some of them (see attachment)
4. That Todd asked her about the number of men she slept with, Todd: “That never happened.”
5. Her account of the drinking at the 8/30/17 dinner suggests much more than "split a bottle of wine" + the nightcap at Setai,
6. That Todd told her numerous times that night "how beautiful" she was,
7. She described two instances that night of Todd touching her butt and Todd's attempts to kiss her, See Todd's quote below, from the interview last year: “I didn't touch this woman.”
8. She viewed Todd's insistence on taking her to his apartment as a thinly disguised attempt to get her to have sex with him
9. That Todd never sent her the list of contacts at boutique banks as he promised Todd: “I never promised to give her specific contacts because I wouldn't have recruiter contacts at those banks. I did give her what I committed to: the names of several banks she might apply to that would likely not be as concerned as others that she didn't receive an offer of employment at the end of her summer program at Barclays."

These are the quotes we previously agreed you could use:

Regarding the dinner at union square cafe...

"When we had dinner, she was not employed at the firm, and the whole purpose of the dinner was for me to kind of help her and give her advice."

About his meeting with Barclays HR, and what he told Barclays HR....

"They started asking me questions about her, and it was clear that something was amiss," he said. "I was very upset." A few days later, he asked for another meeting with HR. "Look," he told HR, "I take my reputation really seriously. I did not sleep with this woman. I didn't touch this woman. But if I made her uncomfortable in any way, shape, or form, I'm sorry. I'm happy to meet with her to apologize." He said HR told him, "Do not reach out. Do not talk to her. Don't do anything." To me, he added, in his 39 years on Wall Street, "I'd never been accused of anything, any impropriety, either financial or personal or otherwise."

on why he went to guggenheim...

"It wasn't about the money. It really was just an opportunity to be at kind of a special place."
